We jump into the community with both feet.

At Holcim, we understand it takes a community to build one.

That's why we are an active member of the community – because we want to do what we can to help make this a better place to live and work. Building great communities takes participation from everyone who lives here.

So come on, jump in. The water's fine.

Longevity Runs In The Family

Any baler can perform. But some balers are just made to perform longer.
Years longer. Like the Max-Pak family of balers.

From our tubular steel construction, to our hydraulic systems, to our electrical components, we design balers that will last by building them to far exceed their expected demands.

So it's no small coincidence that 90% of the balers we've ever made are still on the job.

Good genes
run in the family.
